To the Worthy Freemen of the City of OXFORD.

GENTLEMEN,

SUPPORTED and encouraged, as I have been upon my Canvas, by a numerous and moſt reſpectable Body of Electors, I ſhould be loſt to the Feelings of a grateful Heart if I neglected a Moment to return you my ſincereſt Thanks.

With ſuch ſtrong Aſſurances of your Friendſhip and Partiality towards me, I will ſtedfaſtly continue to purſue every Means to attain to the high Honor of repreſenting the Free and Independent CITY of OXFORD in Parliament; and if my Exertions ſhould meet with that Succeſs which you have given me every Reaſon to hope and expect, I will conſtantly endeavour to evince my Zeal and Attachment in your Service, and to approve myſelf not unworthy of the Confidence you may repoſe in me. I am,

With every Sentiment of Gratitude and Reſpect,

GENTLEMEN,

Your highly obliged,

And very faithful Servant,

OXFORD,
24th Auguſt, 1790.

ARTHUR ANNESLEY.
